CORPUS CHRISTI CELEBRATION

One of the many old-world traditions still celebrated at Good Samaritan Parish is the annual Corpus Christi Eucharistic Procession. Following Mass, parishioners process through the church and out into the neighborhood. Each year a number of parishioners, including children, come dressed in colorful outfits worn in the country of their ancestors. The procession is led by a band, parishioners bearing flags from more than a dozen countries, and the Good Samaritan Choir. As the Eucharist is carried in procession, parishioners scatter flower petals along the path. Several years ago, I invited a friend from a Benedictine Abbey on Mount Zion in the Holy Land. He was amazed that we still keep this sacred tradition alive.

Many thanks to all those who helped with the procession, including Judene Indovina, Martha Piontek, Zach Pinkosky and the Altar Servers, the Choir, the Flag Bearers, Christian Mothers/Ladies Guild, the First Communion Class, the Arts & Environment Committee, those who helped with setup, and the many others who helped in any way. May God bless you all.
